Mike Pence will be attending Biden's inauguration, perhaps in a bid to rehabilitate himself to more respectable Republicans after the embarrassment of the Trump presidency. Pence was a lame duck VP, to the degree that Veeps are supposed to be out in front; but it is clear he wants a career or at least air of respectability after Trump leaves office. Mitch McConnell has now publicly blamed Trump for the riot on Capitol Hill; again no surprise there. In pursuit of continuing the grift, Trump has decided to hold a rally in Florida during the Biden inauguration, which is heavily fortified and will be virtual with no live audience. What will become of this is anyone's guess. What is crucial going forward is the need to resist right-wing populism, nationalism or any conservative big tent movement that crops up on the right. I will discuss at greater length later on.
